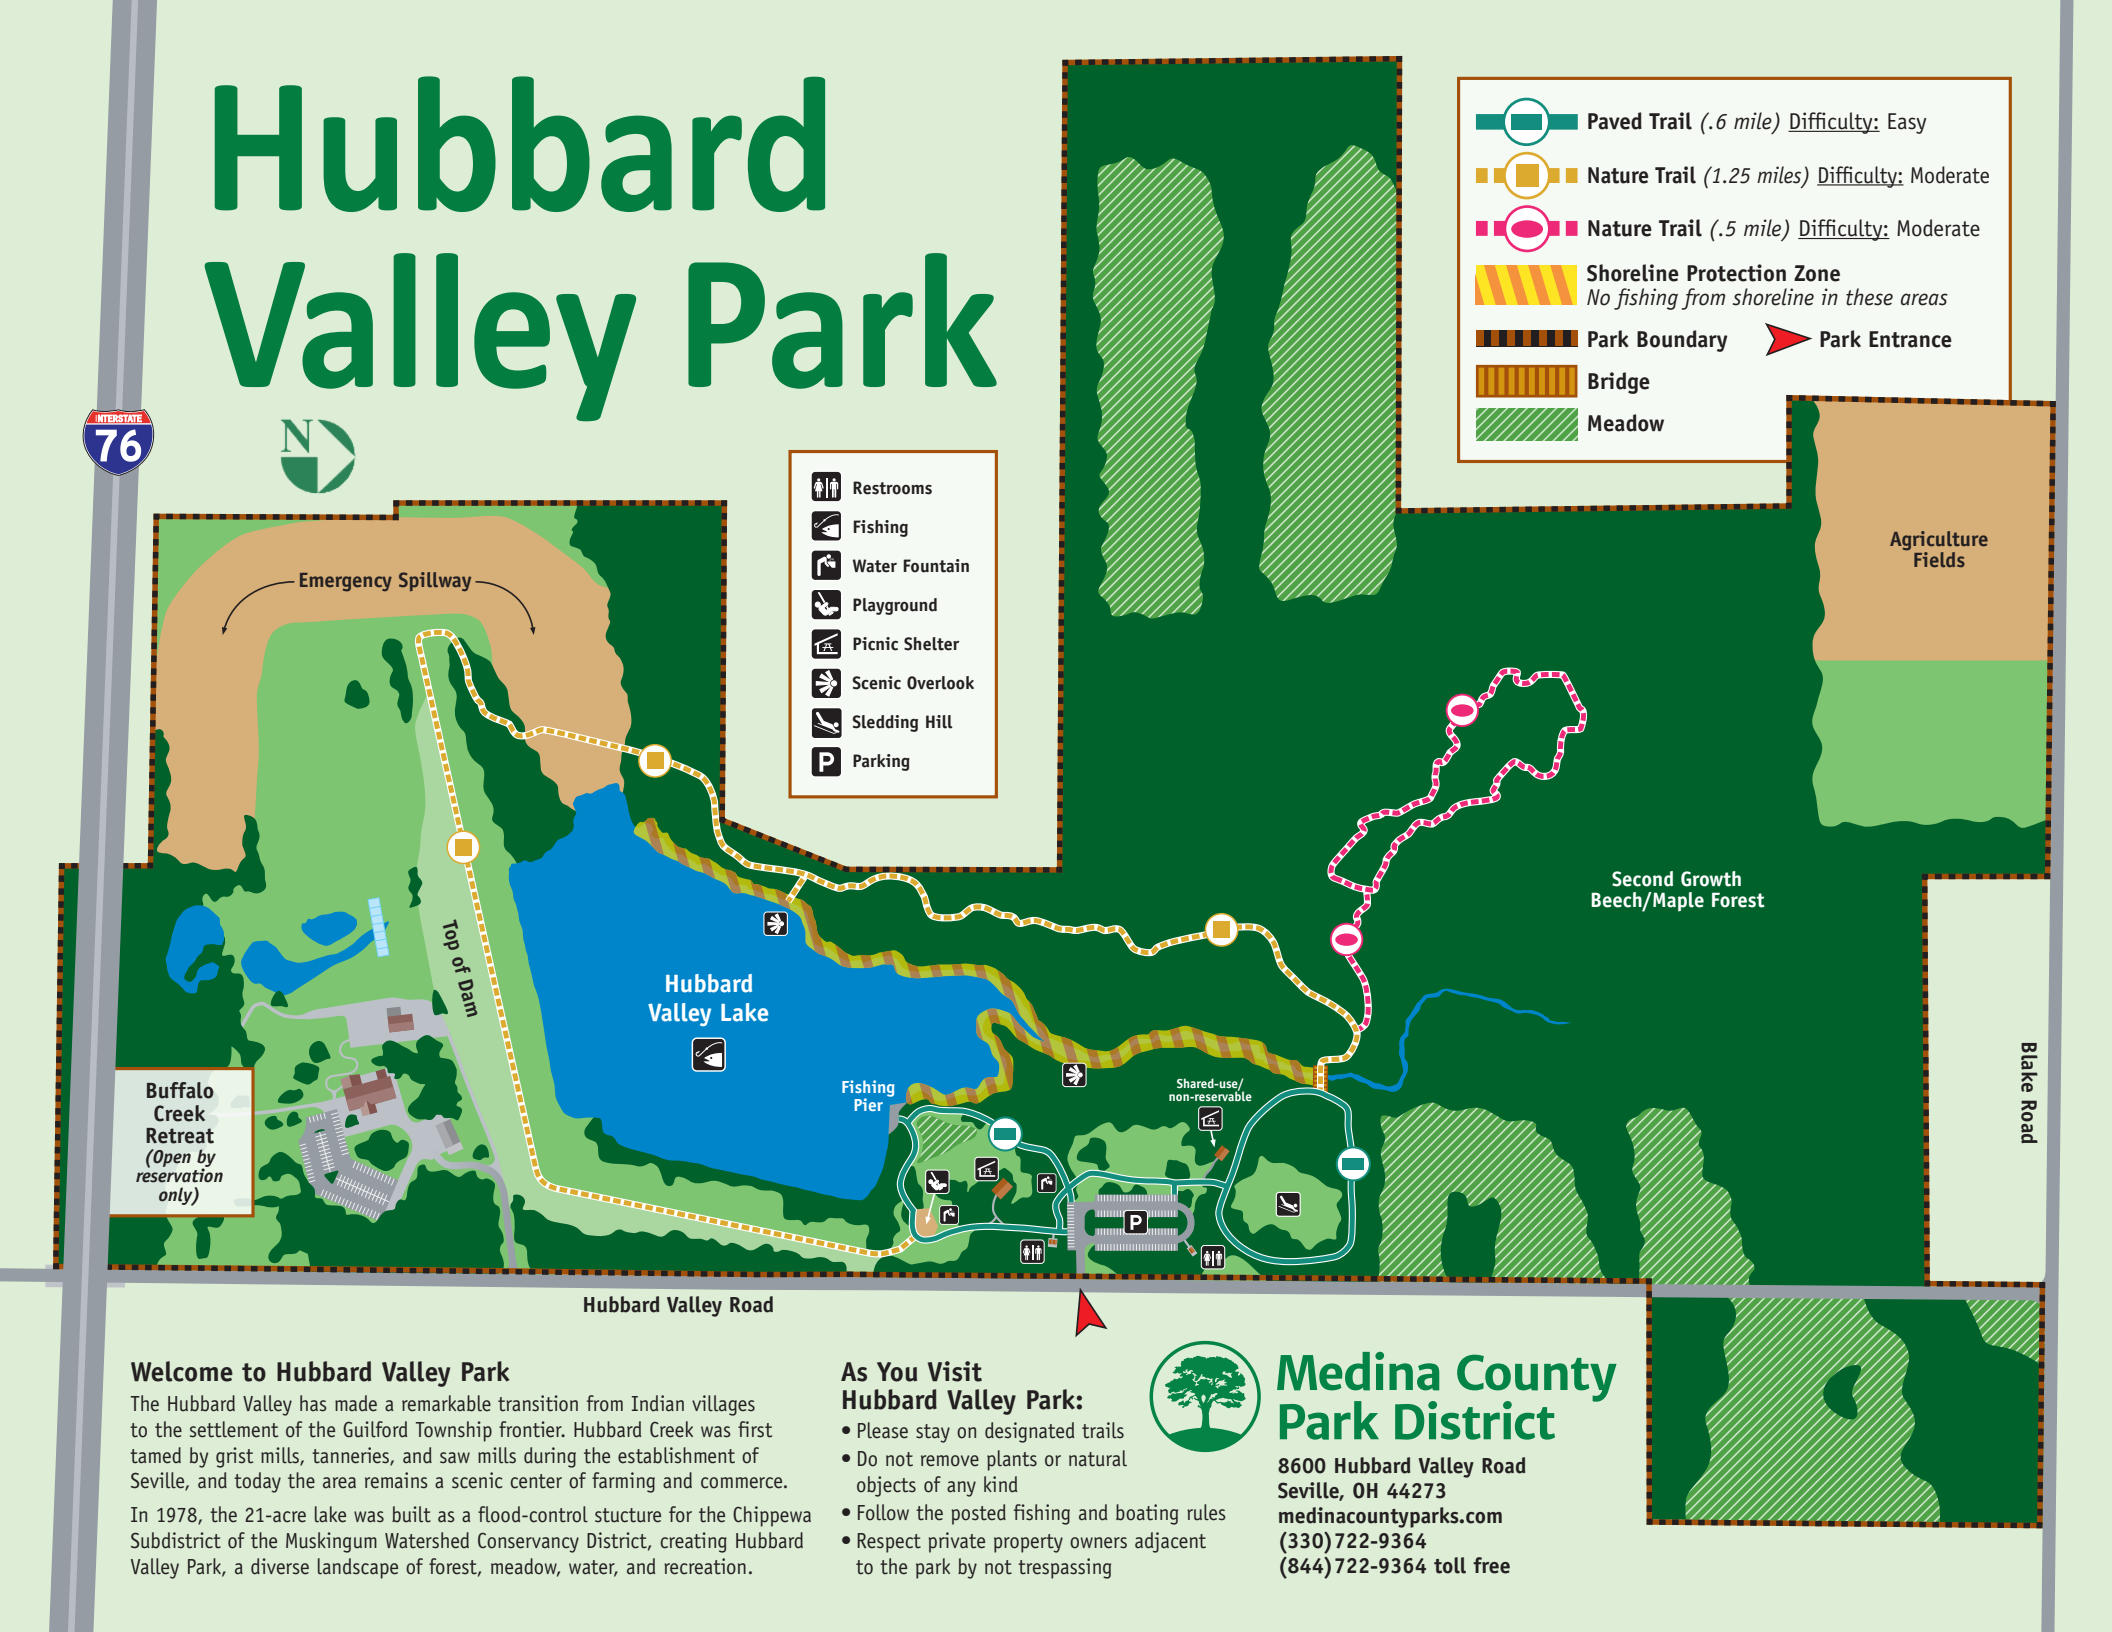
Hubbard Valley Park



Welcome to Hubbard Valley Park

The Hubbard Valley has made a remarkable transition from Indian villages to the settlement of the Guilford Township frontier. Hubbard Creek was first tamed by grist mills, tanneries, and saw mills during the establishment of Seville, and today the area remains a scenic center of farming and commerce.

In 1978, the 21-acre lake was built as a flood-control stucture for the Chippewa Subdistrict of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District, creating Hubbard Valley Park, a diverse landscape of forest, meadow, water, and recreation.

As You Visit Hubbard Valley Park:

- Please stay on designated trails
- Do not remove plants or natural objects of any kind
- Follow the posted fishing and boating rules
- Respect private property owners adjacent to the park by not trespassing
